CONSUMPTION.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT THIS DREAD DISEASE.

Stated Succinctly and Without Comment, From Which You Can Draw Your Own Conclusions.

It is universally admitted that consumption presents the greatest difficulty which confronts the physician.

No disease so general as this is generally dreaded, no disease presents so many accompanying functional derangements of the entire system. The word consumption in its general sense means a consuming, a decaying or wasting away of the lungs.

To the physician it is important to ascertain the peculiar kind of consumption which attacks his patient. It is necessary, therefore, that he be informed of the habits, employment, etc., of his patient. Is it Bronchitis? Is it a disease of the lung substance itself? He must then treat it as the peculiar conditions may require.

There are forms of consumption, though, which have their exciting cause from the presence of irritating particles in the lung substance, inhaled from the moist-laden atmosphere in shops, mines, factories, etc., and to which stone cutters, cutlers, nail makers, etc., are liable. This form is known as Chronic Fibroid Consumption.

And is due to particles of dust being carried in the inspired air and on its way to the air cells deposited in the meshes of the fine velvety coating of the large and small air tubes and air cells, causing irritation, short, hacking cough, and sinking deeper and deeper into the soft tissue, inducing inflammation which involves the glands, muscles, nerves, air cells and blood vessels and finally extending to the substance of the lungs. As the inflammatory process extends more and more the normal lung tissue is changed into a hard fibrous substance and a total obliteration of the nerves, blood vessels and air cells takes place.

After a time the metamorphic tissue softens and degenerates into pus, which may appear in the sputa or be absorbed into the lymphatic system, causes in the last stages evening fevers, night sweats, loss of flesh, cough, dyspeptic symptoms, general debility and shortness of breath. Of course, with the formation of pus there are cavities which gradually increase in size and involve the whole of one or even both lungs, or at least destroy enough lung substance to cause death.

NOW HE IS HAPPY

Mr. Christopherson Was Told That He Was Fatally Affected.

But He Did Not Give Up Hope and Going to Drs. Copeland and Graham—Was Restored to Health—Enthusiastic Praise.

A large percentage of the cases of bronchitis and consumption are caused by catarrh. In treating thousands of cases of catarrh of all kinds, Dr. Copeland and his associates have developed their new lung treatment which cures bronchial troubles and incident consumption as quickly and effectively as ordinary nasal catarrh is cured. Read the following statement and be convinced of this fact.

"Everybody knows how I've been," said Mr. N. Christopherson, the well known tailor in beginning the following statement:

"You see I had the grip very bad, and after I failed rapidly. I got weaker and weaker until I was unable to do any work. The doctors that I went to told me that one lung was badly affected and partially gone and that they could do nothing for me. So, after trying every means that I could think of to obtain relief, I went to Drs. Copeland and Graham, as I had heard that they treated such cases as mine very successfully. I did not know I had catarrh until I went to them, as none of the physicians had told me that fact, and I was surprised when Drs. Copeland and Graham demonstrated to me that that was the cause of all my trouble. You must know how happy I was to discover that my lungs were not in such bad shape as I had been told, and that if the catarrh of the bronchial tubes was removed, my cure would be complete."

"The grip left my lungs and head in a very bad condition. I had an offensive discharge from the nose and mucus was constantly dropping into the back part of my throat. I was having a splitting cough, continually discharging it."

"I had a terrible cough, especially at night, and it drove me out of my sleep to such an extent that I could get no rest at all. My stomach was always nauseated in the morning, and during the day was very weak and painful. After eating I suffered so much that it was two or three hours before I could think of doing any work. My bowels were in a wretched condition also."

"I had sharp pains through my lungs and between the shoulder blades whenever the weather would change, and when it would be stationary the pain was dull. My limbs and shoulders were painful, and when at work it seemed as if my back would break."

PRESENT CONDITION.
"Now I am so different that I hardly know myself. My cough is gone and I feel no pains at all in the back or in the chest. My bowels are now regular, and they have been for years. My stomach now bears three good meals a day, and I have been built up and given strength, as Drs. Copeland and Graham said I would be. I am getting stronger every day and have been working hard and steadily for weeks. My chest is now no longer sore to the touch, and my improvement has been so much more thorough and rapid than I expected that I am perfectly delighted and my friends are astonished."

"I will gladly give all the information I can about my recovery to anyone who calls upon me, and I take pleasure in publicly expressing my thanks to Drs. Copeland and Graham for what they have done for me."
